Refuse to Be Compromised: Integrity Council's Suggestions for Spring 2023

“One of the truest tests of integrity is its blunt refusal to be compromised.” --Chinua Achebe

It's essential to each student and instructor's integrity to understand and practice “certain standards of academic honesty and social conduct” here at Carroll (Carroll's Code of Integrity). However, many students and instructors aren't sure where to find resources that are easily accessible, clear, and specific to our Carroll community.

In this series, we will discuss the Integrity Council's Top 3 Suggestions for a great Spring 2023.

Suggestion #3: THE ACADEMIC CENTER IS INVALUABLE!

The Academic Center is an under-appreciated resource at Carroll. Our student and professional tutors offer one-on-one appointments and drop-in tutoring on the library's second floor. Just as librarians are our real-life representations of Indiana Jones, our tutors are wise superheroes. They are consistently optimistic, see the potential in every student, and do everything in their power to stand between a student and academic dishonesty. The Academic Center does not serve as a “fix it shop.” Rather, tutors lead students to identify specific obstacles, to overcome those obstacles, and to reflect on the process of learning. The Academic Center is available via an easily accessed Canvas course, which allows every student the opportunity to see the latest updates and to schedule appointments.

Dirk Quinn is the guitarist for the jazz/funk band that coincidentally bears his name. Based out of Philadelphia, the group travels extensively throughout the US and Canada. The band's infectious energy and musical interplay routinely attract listeners that are admittedly more accustomed to lyric-based music. With great melodic sensibilities, rhythmic experimentation and an accessible modern edge, the Dirk Quinn Band is jazz/funk improvisation at its most engaging!

This performance is free and open to the public!
